

ROYAL MASSACRE!

A horrific news was announced this morning by the spokesman of the Danish Crown: all the members of the royal family were found dead poisoned after a duel between prince Hamlet and Laertes, who brought chaos to Elsinor just three days ago by routing the king's army in order to revenge his father Polonius mysterious death.

The cause of the slaughter is a plan contrived by king Claudius and Laertes himself to kill the prince, accused of counselor Polonius murder.

A plan that clearly went wrong since even prince Claudius and Laertes were injured by the envenomed sword destined to only hit Hamlet. Moreover our beloved queen Gertrude met the death drinking by accident a glass of wine mixed with a lethal substance.

SHADOWS OVER THE CROWN

A tragedy that completes a series of terrible events like the unexpected demise of king Hamlet and the suicide of lady Ophelia that shook Denmark these last months.

It is still unclear the reason of such hatred inside the royal family.

An anonymous witness has revealed that prince Hamlet was suspecting Claudius to be his father's killer.

This could explain the depressed state of the heir to the throne portrayed by all the gossip magazines lately, that everybody thought was only due to the end of his relationship with lady Ophelia.

STRUGGLE FOR POWER

And now that Denmark has lost its royal dynasty many noblemen are trying to get the chance to be the new king.

One of these is Fortinbras, prince of Norway, who leads the largest and strongest army around and therefore is likely going to be our next sovereign.
